TEMPHIS APPEAL

O painter, paint me a picture,
Not "studies" of more or eve,
Sut bid the dumb canvas to sitter
The story my lips shall wasse.
Yeary brass shall be truth; your solors
The varied hues life wears—
And, artist, to motisen your palette,
When needed, I'll give you tears. First, paint on the magic canvas A meadow of freshed green. With here and there a daisy Pasping the rocks netween— Rocks, regred and sharp, and blood-st Where leader young feet have gone, From the dead mother's key beaum, To clamber the rocks alone.

Then paint me a weary desert.
Gerhung with a leaden sky,
Where never a briefle sweep by,
And never a breeze sweep by,
Dip your brush in the waters of March,
And paint desolution there; a buried hope, and the grave of lave, and the viange of deep despair. Then, next, paint a fervid summer A gorgeous tropical scene—
With bursting fruit and bleeding vines,
And the follage rank and green;
With rosy clouds and golden.
O'erhanging the scene above—
With my soul for your palette, artist,
Oh, paint me this dream of love!

Then fill up your canvas, reinter, With cloude of miety gray; To-morrow is yet in eleminad, Our picture is done to-day. I'll hang it where all shall homor A talent so bold and free; arrist it the name of the picture, aris is known but to you and me!

SOMEBODY. BY JULIA MAYILDA JULIUS.

there is a heart hearing for somebody; There is a heart hearing for somebody; This thought is a soluce to me, Somebody is thinking of somebody. Describe, hopeless, doon, Still I am cherished by somebody; One heart response to my own— What were this life without somebody? Bright hopes have vanished and fied, bark is life's pathway to somebody; Fals brings me maught in their stead, Save the remainbranes of somebody.

Every cloud hideln a ray;
Sunshine may yet beam on somehody;
Surrow is but for a day;
Long though the time scens to samehody.
Hark? O'er the wide-strotching main
Hope whiteper softly to somebody;
Once there it be unsetting again—
Oh, then how blist will be semetody.

SPONTANEOUS GENERATION OF ANI-We clip the following from the Hamilton (C. W.) Evening Times, of the 27th of February:

The theory of Prof. Darwin that all animal life has its origin in the primary cell, and that its variety only presents the different stages of development from the lowest orders to the most perfect creation, man, has been apparently sustained by a startling example in this city, which will be likely to engage in a high degree the attention of the scientific. uring last fall Mr. Charles Motzer, a German citizen residing on Bay street, put up a large quantity of his favorite article of diet, souer kroud, in the preparation of which he tested the efficacy of a put up a large quantity of his favorite article of diet, some kroud, in the preparation of which he tested the efficacy of a receipt suggested to him by a friend. The experiment proved a failure, as the introduction of some description of alkali had the effect of reducing the cabbage into a mash and causing strong fomentiation, rendering the commodity entirely unfit for use as an article of diet. The mixture was left standing in the cellar when a surface of selection of some description of alkali had the effect of reducing the cabbage into a mash and causing strong fomentiation, rendering the commodity entirely unfit for use as an article of diet. dozen or more of the same description of reptiles, which were exceedingly lively and sought to secret themselves under boards, etc., on the approach of a light. While prospecting about for the source of these strange creatures, the tubs in which the source trust had been deposited were examined, and presented a sight truly startling. The substance had been transformed into a mass of life and in every stage of development The smallest specimens were about two mehes in length, and seemed to be acciring the least degree of animation. Of these, the bodies were quite transparent, with a light yellowish tinge, and but the consistency of jelly. Speci-bens in a more advanced stage assumed pink hue, with bodies more opaque. The fully developed reptiles measured from six to eight and even ten inches in about the consistency of jelly. Speci-mens in a more advanced stage assumed length, with bodies hard and fleshy, of a brilliant crimson color. The back deep-cus into a black line from the head to of a delicate pink, merging into white. The form of the reptile is said to be very similar to the chamelion, having four legs, with indications of claws and its movements are very lively. The eyes are sharp and serpent-like, and surrounded with a yel-lowish ring merging into black. Several specimens have been secured by a medi-cal gentlemun, and are preserved in ens have been secured by a medi-ntleman, and are preserved in A microscopic examination nows a fine coating of scales, and ser-cied formation of the back and tall. Mr. Motzer still allows the tubs to remain unof the curious freak of nature, it being evident that the entire stock of the dainty commodity, which was intended to supply his table through the winter, will ultimately take to itself legs, if not wings, and travel off on its own acmented by another very interesting species, if the climate of Canada will permit its propagation. This remarksble case presents a grave warning to consummers of somer krant, to take great care
